University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign

Since its founding in 1867, the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign has earned a reputation as an institution of international stature. Its distinguished faculty, outstanding resources, breadth of academic programs and research disciplines, and large and diverse student body constitute an educational community ideally suited for scholarship and research.

Known internationally for its achievements in research and graduate study, the University enrolls some 9,000 graduate and professional students in more than 100 disciplines, and attracts more than $184 million a year in private, state, and federal grants and contract appropriations. In recent years, a significant amount of this support has been directed toward the creation and development of major centers for advanced research and study, including more than $100 million for the National Center for Supercomputing Applications and the Center for Supercomputing Research and Development. Together, these two centers have established the University as a recognized world leader in the fields of supercomputing architecture, design, and applications. In 1989, the University inaugurated the Arnold O. and Mabel M. Beckman Institute for Advanced Science and Technology. The most visible example of the University's commitment to interdisciplinary study, the institute brings together investigators from several disciplines for the study of human and artificial intelligence.

The University's research mission shares prominence with a fundamental commitment to undergraduate education. Nearly 27,000 undergraduate students are enrolled in 10 undergraduate divisions, together offering more than 4,000 courses in more than 150 fields of study. The divisions include the College of Agriculture, College of Applied Life Studies, College of Commerce and Business Administration, College of Communications, College of Education, College of Engineering, College of Fine and Applied Arts, College of Liberal Arts and Sciences, Institute of Aviation, and School of Social Work.

About 30 percent of the campus's graduates choose to continue their education in graduate or professional schools. Typically, 90 percent of graduates who apply to law school are accepted; 78 percent are accepted to medical school.

Academic resources on the campus are among the finest in the world. The University of Illinois Library at Urbana-Champaign is the third largest academic collection in the nation, housing more than 11 million items in the main library and 38 departmental libraries. Only Harvard and Yale have larger collections. The Library's computerized cataloging system was the first in the world to serve as the primary access to a large academic library. Users can access the Library's collections from more than 200 computer terminals placed throughout the campus.

The University supports a long tradition in computer-aided education. PLATO (TM), the largest computer-based instructional system in the world, was developed at the University of Illinois nearly 30 years ago. Today, more than 65,000 users worldwide take advantage of 22,000 instructional material files at 2,200 terminals each day. NovaNET, the University's newest full-service computer network, delivers computer-aided instruction via satellite.

In recent years, the University has entered into cooperative agreements with such corporations as IBM, AT&T, Apple, and Zenith, placing 8,000 computer terminals in classrooms, residence halls, and campus libraries for use in classroom instruction, study, and research. Project EXCEL (Excellence in Computer-aided Education and Learning), an IBM-supported program initiated in 1984, encourages the development of curriculum software packages in undergraduate classrooms across the campus.

Among the University's most significant resources is its talented and highly respected faculty. More than 80 faculty members belong to the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, the National Academy of Sciences, or the National Academy of Engineering. Nine scientists have received the National Medal of Science and 42 have received the Presidential Young Investigators Award while on the faculty. Professor Emeritus John Bardeen won the Nobel Prize in physics twice—the only person ever to do so.

Another prime indicator of the University's excellence is the success of its alumni. Eight graduates have won Nobel Prizes for the United States, and another 15 have won Pulitzer Prizes. Eleven chief executives of Fortune 500 companies are alumni of the campus.

A major center for the arts, the campus attracts dozens of nationally and internationally renowned artists each year to its widely acclaimed Krannert Center for the Performing Arts. Designed by alumnus Max Abramovitz, an architect of New York City's Lincoln Center, the facility has four indoor theaters and an outdoor amphitheater. Together, they host more than 275 performances each year, including those by major symphony orchestras, classical and modern ballet companies, and individual artists such as Luciano Pavarotti, Jean-Pierre Rampal, and Isaac Stern.

The University also supports three major museums: the Krannert Art Museum, second only to the Art Institute of Chicago among Illinois public art museums; the World Heritage Museum; and the Museum of Natural History.

Other major facilities include the Assembly Hall (16,000 seats), Memorial Stadium (69,200 seats), and the Intramural-Physical Education Building, one of the largest recreational facilities of its kind on a university campus.

Located in east-central Illinois in the two cities of Urbana and Champaign (population 100,000), the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign is the state of Illinois' flagship public university.

President Stanley O. Ikenberry

Stanley O. Ikenberry was appointed President of the University of Illinois in 1979. Since then he has guided the University's triple mission of teaching, research and public service toward the goal of making the University of Illinois the best public university in America. His leadership at Illinois is marked by an exceedingly strong commitment to the human resources of the University and to the humanizing value of the University for society.

President Ikenberry has responsibility for all aspects of University operation, including campuses at Urbana-Champaign and Chicago, an enrollment of about 60,000 students, and an annual operating budget of more than $1 billion.

President Ikenberry received his Ph.D. in higher education research from Michigan State University in 1960. He taught at Michigan State and at West Virginia University before joining the Center for the Study of High Education at the Pennsylvania State University in 1969. He had risen to senior vice president when he was named president at the University of Illinois. He holds honorary degrees from Michigan State University, Millikin University, Illinois College and Rush University. He is also an Honorary Alumnus of Penn State.

A holder of numerous corporate and civic board memberships, he is co-chairman of the Governor's (Illinois) Commission on Science and Technology, past chairman of both the National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges and the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, a member of the board of directors of the American Council on Education, and executive board member of the Association of American Universities. Since June, 1987, Ikenberry has been chairman of the Council of Ten, which is composed of the chief executive officers of the Big Ten Conference universities.

Dr. Ikenberry lives with his wife, Judith, in the President's House in Urbana. The Ikenberrys have three sons.

Chancellor Morton Weir

Morton W. Weir became the campus' fifth chancellor in April of 1988. Weir joined the Urbana-Champaign faculty in 1960 and has served in a variety of faculty and administrative posts since then. Before assuming the leadership of the campus, Weir served as vice president for academic affairs, the senior academic officer for both U of I campuses, at Urbana-Champaign and Chicago.

Weir is a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science and member of the Society for Research in Child Development, Phi Kappa Phi and Sigma Xi. He has served as editor, member or commissioner for a number of professional journals and organizations. He currently is a member of the national advisory committee of the Ounce of Prevention Fund; on the board of directors of Voices for Illinois Children; and executive commissioner of the North Central Association of Colleges and Schools' Commission on Institutions of Higher Education.

Weir received his bachelor's degree, with honors, from Knox College in Galesburg in 1955. He earned a master of arts in 1958 and a doctorate in experimental psychology in 1959, both from the University of Texas at Austin. In 1977, Knox College awarded him an honorary Doctor of Laws degree.

Weir is a native of Canton. He and his wife, Cecelia, have three children.

Board of Trustees

Members of the Board of Trustees are elected by the citizens of Illinois. The trustees constitute the governing body of the University. The trustees, who serve without pay, approve the University's budget and formulate general University policies. Each trustee is elected to a six-year term. The Governor of the State of Illinois is an ex-officio member of the Board.

Campus Life

In academics, as in athletics, opportunity and support are vital to success. The University of Illinois offers the best of both. Opportunity comes in myriad forms, including:

- More than 4,000 courses in more than 150 fields of study. "A mind-boggling variety of majors is available," wrote Gene Hawes, author of The College Board Guide to Going to College While Working.

- A distinguished faculty. Twice in the last five years, the U of I has led the nation in number of Fulbright Scholars. Illinois faculty members have been named Presidential Young Investigators 31 times since the awards were instituted in 1984. Four members of the faculty have won the National Medal of Science.

- The nation's largest public university library, with more than seven million volumes and more than 11 million items.

- Student access to more than 8,000 computer workstations in classrooms, libraries, residence halls and the Illini Union.

Assistance is available to all students to help them make the most of these vast resources. Student athletes come under the special program of the academic services office, overseen by a full-time academic counselor. It includes educational evaluation, advising, classroom performance monitoring, scheduled study halls, tutoring and effective use of university facilities. It is little wonder that the 1988 edition of Selective Guide to Colleges, by Edward B. Fiske, education editor of the New York Times, awards the U of I five stars, its highest ranking, and describes it as "a giant among academic institutions, ranking among the world's great universities." Learning and participating are important outside, as well as inside, the classroom. And at the University of Illinois, the opportunities are as limitless in extracurricular arenas as they are in academic arenas. Housing? First-rate residence halls with good food, the nation's largest fraternity and sorority system, independent housing and a wide range of apartments provide broad choices of where and how to live. Activities? More than 700 student organizations provide an outlet for every interest, from the philanthropies of Volunteer Illini Projects to the rock music of student radio station WPGU. There are more than 40 student organizations for minority interests. Sports and recreation? The Intramural Physical Education Building is one of the largest complexes on any campus, with four gymsnasiums, 23 handball/racquetball courts, weight and exercise equipment, indoor and outdoor pools, tennis courts and more. The U of I has one of the most comprehensive intramural sports programs in the nation. If the great outdoors is more to your liking, the university's 1,500-acre Allerton Park includes sculpture gardens, formal gardens and natural woodlands. Culture and entertainment? The domed Assembly Hall seats more than 16,000 for rock concerts, ice shows, circuses, Broadway musicals and, of course, Illinois basketball. Beautifully restored Foellinger Auditorium on the Quad seats

1,750 for concerts, films and speakers. And the Krannert Center for the Performing Arts—"Arguably the best performing arts facilities in the nation," according to the education editor of Time Magazine—holds four theaters for plays, dance and concerts by such famed names as the Chicago Symphony and Itzhak Perlman. Off campus? Champaign and Urbana, with a population of 100,000, offer shopping, restaurants, movie theaters, night spots and many other big-city amenities. Yet, they retain a Midwestern college-town atmosphere.

The Assembly Hall

There is just one facility that could host not only Fighting Illini Basketball, but also the Ice Capades, Whitney Houston, Huey Lewis and the News, Stevie Wonder, Broadway plays and Bill Cosby. That place is the Assembly Hall.

One of the world's most unique arenas, the Assembly Hall has won world-wide acclaim for its architectural design—a design that has been used as a model for more than 125 buildings around the globe. The Assembly Hall was built between 1959 and 1963 at a cost of $8.35 million. The structure consists of two concrete bowls placed face to face; the 400-foot diameter of the dome makes it the largest of its kind in the world.

Its circular seating arrangement makes the Assembly Hall an ideal place to watch an event; it gives each of the spectators (potentially 16,153 for basketball) an excellent, unobstructed view of the exciting action on the court. That capacity has been stretched to overflowing on 37 occasions; seven of those tightly-packed crowds viewed games just last season. The all-time attendance mark was set March 1, 1987, when 16,793 Fighting Illini fans enjoyed a victory over eventual national champion Indiana.

Illinois has enjoyed great success in the Assembly Hall. In 25 seasons they have won 76% of the games they have played (260-81 record). In fact, in a recent two-year period, the Fighting Illini went on a streak of 31 wins there.

In 1988-89, Illinois averaged over 12,000 fans per home game for the tenth consecutive season;

262,215 fans passed through the turnstiles (average of 15,424 per game), including the four millionth Fighting Illini basketball fan. Only in 1979-80 did the Fighting Illini play before more home fans (271,375). In 1970-71, the Assembly Hall accommodated an NCAA record-setting 177,408 spectators (since broken), when all 11 home games were sellouts.

Division of Intercollegiate Athletics

The forerunner of the Division of Intercollegiate Athletics (DIA), the University of Illinois Athletic Association, was chartered in 1892 as a not-for-profit corporation of the state of Illinois; it was charged with overseeing and conducting the University's intercollegiate athletic programs and associated support services, and operated as a separate entity.

After the state legislature voted in June, 1989 to bring UI athletics within the University proper, the DIA assumed the functions and responsibilities of the Athletic Association. The Division of Intercollegiate Athletics began operations officially July 1, 1989.

The Director of Athletics is the Division's chief executive officer, and reports directly to the Chancellor of the Urbana-Champaign campus. The Chancellor has final say regarding the athletic program in all areas except the budget and approval of major appointments. Those decisions rest with the University of Illinois Board of Trustees.

The Athletic Board serves the DIA in an advisory capacity. It is composed of 17 members, 14 of which are voting members (eight faculty, four alumni and two students); the three non-voting members are from the University administration.

The faculty and student members are nominated by the Urbana-Champaign Senate and selected by the Chancellor for consideration by the President of the University and the Board of Trustees.

DIA revenues are derived from three major sources: gate receipts from football and men's basketball, television rights fees for those two sports, and donations to the Grants/In/Aid (athletic scholarship) program.

Director of Athletics John Mackovic

In less than two years, from when he first came to the University of Illinois as head football coach, John Mackovic has: assembled one of the top football coaching staffs in the country; turned Illinois into a Big Ten Conference football contender, resulting in the school's first bowl game appearance (All American Bowl, Birmingham, Ala., last December) since 1985, and a 1989 preseason top-20 ranking; he was named Illinois' Director of Athletics, and has put together one of college athletics' outstanding management teams.

Mackovic was named Illinois' football coach Feb. 3, 1988, and hit the ground running. With virtually no time to recruit players, he took over a team that was coming off back-to-back 4-7 and 3-7-1 seasons; his first Fighting Illini squad captured six wins and a tie in its last nine games of the regular season, and played Michigan for the Big Ten title before earning a berth in the All American Bowl.

For leading this Illinois team out of the doldrums and into a championship-contending position, Mackovic was honored by both his Big Ten coaching peers (UPI) and by members of the media (AP) as the Big Ten

Coach of the Year. It marked the second time in conference history that a first-year coach had captured the prestigious Dave McClain Coach of the Year honor (the other was Earle Bruce of Ohio State in 1979).

After demonstrating his leadership abilities on the football field, Chancellor Morton Weir and other University of Illinois administrators made a choice for the vacated Director of Athletics position by naming Mackovic to the dual role of A.D./Football Coach Dec. 23, 1988.

Mackovic attended Wake Forest, and was a starter at quarterback in a backfield that included his close friend, the late Brian Piccolo. Following his graduation from Wake Forest in 1965, Mackovic accepted a graduate assistant position with fellow Barberton native Bo Schembechler at Miami of Ohio. After completing work on his master's degree in educational administration, Mackovic served one season as basketball coach at Fort Knox, Ky., with the United States Army.

Mackovic returned to coaching football in 1968 when he took over the Army's plebe team. During the next eight seasons, he spent time as an assistant at San Jose State, Army (once again), and Arizona. In 1977, he joined Purdue's staff as offensive coordinator where he was responsible for developing the skills of All-American quarterback Mark Herrmann.

After eight seasons as an assistant coach, Mackovic earned his first head coaching spot at his alma mater, Wake Forest. In his second season with the Deacons, he led them to an 8-3 mark which produced the school's first appearance ever in the national rankings and a spot in the Tangerine Bowl, just the third bowl game participation by a Wake Forest team.

Following the 1980 season at Wake Forest, Mackovic gave up his head coaching duties to become quarterback coach under Tom Landry in the Dallas Cowboys organization. Two successful years with the Cowboys produced NFL playoff berths and saw Danny White emerge as a Pro Bowl quarterback.

In 1983, at the age of 39, Mackovic was selected as the head coach of the Kansas City Chiefs. He quickly took a floundering offense that was among the NFL's worst and turned it into one of the league's most prolific attacks, finishing his first season with the third best passing attack in the league. Three rebuilding years paid dividends in 1986 as the Chiefs posted a 10-6 record and earned the team's first NFL playoff appearance in 15 years. In doing so, Mackovic became one of the few coaches in the game today to take losing teams in both collegiate and professional football and turn them into winning organizations.

While sitting out the 1987 season as a coach, Mackovic served as president of the Cypress Professional Development Group, a consulting and training organization targeted to middle and upper-level management. He also founded and established his own company, Yes, Inc., a service-related organization directed to motivational speaking with radio and television exposure. He currently serves as president of Yes, Inc.

Mackovic also has been active in a number of civic and charity events, including serving as co-chairman of a Kansas City March of Dimes benefit dinner that generated more than $100,000 in proceeds to help fight birth defects. He also has played an active role in the Kansas and Missouri Special Olympics and is currently involved in the local March of Dimes.

Mackovic, born Oct. 1, 1943, in Barberton, Ohio, is a frequent golfer who sports a single-digit handicap and has recorded two holes-in-one. He and his wife, Arlene, have two children, Aimee and John. The family resides in Champaign.

University of Illinois Athletic Facilities

With revenue generated from three major sources (football and men's basketball gate receipts, radio/television revenue and donations), the University of Illinois over the years has been able to maintain and upgrade its athletic facilities, staying on par with the best major collegiate programs across the nation.

The Division of Intercollegiate Athletics is in a stepped-up phase of capital development. Recent additions to the athletic facilities during this Campaign for Excellence include new artificial turf on the Memorial Stadium football field, as well as an air-supported dome to cover it during the off season. The "bubble," as it is called, allows for Zuppke Field to be utilized year round for such activities as postseason bowl preparation, intramurals, and spring baseball practice, as well as others. Other additions to Memorial Stadium include a nationally-renowned football/training headquarters, featuring one of the nation's largest and most advanced weight training rooms, a sports medicine area, and athlete study halls. This has brought all aspects of the football program into one central area, thereby increasing efficiency and performance.

Football is not the only athletic program receiving a boost from the new and improved facilities. Baseball begins its third season in the first-rate Proano Stadium, which seats 1,500 and is targeted for an expansion to accommodate 5,000. The nationally-acclaimed track team is also primed for its third season in the $2.2 million dollar track and field stadium. Future expansion for this facility allows for up to 12,000 seats. On the drawing board is an athletic administration office building, featuring a public gallery, U of I Hall of Fame, and offices for numerous Division of Intercollegiate Athletics personnel. Also planned are an indoor-outdoor tennis complex (ground-breaking is expected in 1990) as well as a 5,000-seat multi-sports competition building, which would provide much needed space for practice and competition in volleyball, wrestling, fencing, gymnastics and basketball.

Basketball enthusiasts are certain to notice when they first enter the Assembly Hall this season the new twin state-of-the-art scoreboards (funded separately by the Assembly Hall), which have replaced the single above-center-court scoreboard, in place for games ever since the arena's opening in 1963. The new scoreboards offer message and graphics capabilities, and provide fans with statistical updates during the course of the games.

Head Coach Lou Henson

Lou Henson is at the pinnacle of his profession. The 57-year-old Okay, Okla., native enters his 28th season of college coaching—the fifth winningest (535 victories) active NCAA Division I coach. Following Illinois' most successful basketball season ever (record 31 wins and NCAA Final Four appearance), Henson is now one of just nine coaches to have taken teams from two different schools to that late March-early April extravaganza.

Henson has a proven track record wherever he has lent his expertise. His teams have either tied or set school records for victories (in a season) seven times. It is no accident that Henson coached teams have averaged 19.8 wins per season (more than 21 per season at Illinois), including seven straight seasons with 20 or more wins, and postseason appearances every year of the 1980s decade.

Henson's basketball career began in his hometown. After taking his skills to Connor (Okla.) Junior College and New Mexico State, he moved to a less familiar vantage point, the sidelines. He ventured immediately into coaching, spending six seasons at Las Cruces High School in New Mexico, where he served as junior varsity coach for two years, before being promoted to head coach. While at LCHS, Henson compiled 145 wins against just 23 losses, his teams capturing three consecutive

Under Lou Henson, the Fighting Illini have:

- made their first NCAA Final Four appearance since 1952
- won 20 or more games for seven straight seasons
- made 10 consecutive postseason appearances, eight of which have been in the NCAA Tournament
- become one of just two teams to receive top-16 NCAA Tournament seeds in each of the last six seasons
- become a fixture at or near the top of the Big Ten Conference defensive statistical charts
- picked up more wins under their current coach (147) than any other conference team
- made him the 21st coach in NCAA history to have won 500 games in a career; #500 came Feb. 29, 1988, at Indiana
- produced a 140-28 (.833) non-conference record
- put together nine of the 15 Illinois basketball 20-win seasons, and nine consecutive seasons with 10 or more Big Ten wins
- won an average of more than 25 games per season over the last six years
- sent five players on to the NBA (who are currently playing): Eddie Johnson (Phoenix Suns), Derek Harper (Dallas Mavericks), Ken Norman (Los Angeles Clippers), Nick Anderson (Orlando Magic), and Kenny Battle (Phoenix Suns)
- played 14 seasons, placing Henson behind only Harry Combes as the Fighting Illini basketball coach with the longest tenure state championships.

Hardin-Simmons gave Henson his first opportunity at coaching at the collegiate level, and he seized the opportunity by putting together 20-victory seasons on two occasions. Those 20-win seasons sandwiched a 17-win campaign, and each was built around a forward out of Syracuse, N.Y., named Dick Nagy. Nagy, now an assistant coach with Illinois, recalls what it was like to play for Henson. "He's the guy who taught me what it means to play hard and work at defense. If you made a mistake you were out and you knew it. He never interfered with the things you needed to keep relaxed when you were shooting. His system hasn't changed, although he may be more flexible."

Henson's fourth and final season at Hardin-Simmons ended at 20-6. That same year (1966), New Mexico State was finishing at 4-22. The Aggies called upon Henson to rebuild their program, and the next season he produced a 15-11 slate, and took the team on the first of six trips to the NCAA tournament. Of those appearances, the 1970 season was the most fruitful; New Mexico State finished the season with 27 wins and three losses. The final loss was to eventual champion, UCLA, in the semifinals of the NCAA tournament. It was the third consecutive time the Bruins had knocked off Henson's Aggies, but they would go on to win their final game against St. Bonaventure, and finish third in the tournament. Members of that 1970 quintet included three players who made names for themselves in the NBA: Sam Lacey (Kansas City Kings), Charlie Criss (Atlanta Hawks) and All-America guard and current Illinois assistant coach, Jimmy Collins (Chicago Bulls).

On top of the four 20-win seasons at New Mexico State, Henson won 19 games twice and had only one losing season. Over his 27-year career, Henson has had just three losing seasons. Within two years of each, he had either won 20 games or led his team to a postseason tournament.

Despite the three years of disappointment that John Wooden's teams handed Henson at tournament time, it was Wooden's retirement that paved the way for Henson's arrival in Champaign. UCLA decided to replace Wooden with then-Illinois coach Gene Bartow. Henson was chosen to fill the vacancy left by Bartow, and rebuild a team that finished 8-18 the previous year. He was the third coach in as many years for Illinois.

was just two games over .500. From then on he has never been fewer than seven games over that mark. Former assistant Tony Yates made recruiting inroads to Chicago, and Jimmy Collins has strengthened those ties. This has all provided the foundation for a program that is generally considered one of the nation's best, year-in and year-out. With the NIT final four appearance in 1980, a Big Ten co-championship in 1984, seven straight NCAA tournament appearances and the Final Four trip to Seattle this past spring, the program has become one of the country's most consistently strong. In fact, Illinois and North Carolina are the only two teams to have received top-16 NCAA seeds the last six years in succession.

Henson has always been a stickler for defense. His 1966 New Mexico State squad held its opponents to 39 percent shooting from the field. For the past six seasons at Illinois, his teams have been either first or second in the Big Ten in at least one of the two defensive statistical categories (FG percentage or points allowed). Since he has led the Fighting Illini program, the opponents' combined field goal percentage is 44.5, while the Illini have shot 49.2.

Lou Henson earned his 500th career victory at Indiana Feb. 29, 1988. He is the 21st coach in NCAA history to manage that feat. His 535 wins rank him 19th all-time and fifth among active coaches. In addition, he has won more Big Ten games than any current coach in the conference.

He is a native of Okay, Okla. Henson and his wife, Mary, have four children and live in Champaign.

Dick Nagy

Dick Nagy's association with Lou Henson goes back to his days as a player at Hardin-Simmons. Nagy, out of high school for three years, was playing basketball independently in his native Syracuse, N.Y., when Henson persuaded him to attend Hardin-Simmons. While at H-S, Nagy and Henson led the Cowboys to a three-year combined record of 57-20, including two 20-6 slates. After Henson departed for New Mexico State in 1967, Nagy captained his final Hardin-Simmons team and stayed two more seasons as an assistant coach.

Following his tenure at Hardin-Simmons, Nagy moved on in 1969 to start the basketball program at Barton County Community College in Great Bend, Kan. He spent seven seasons at BCCC prior to entering into private business in 1976.

Nagy could not stay away from coaching for long, as he accepted the head coaching position at East Central Junior College in Union, Mo., in 1977. He spent two seasons at ECJC before coming to Illinois. Since Nagy's arrival, Illinois has been in postseason action every year.

In addition to his duties of coaching the inside players and recruiting, Nagy is also the coordinator of the highly successful Illinois summer basketball camp. He has two children, Robin and Scott, and lives in Champaign.

Jimmy Collins

Jimmy Collins is arguably one of the best basketball recruiters in the country. Beginning his seventh season with Illinois, the Syracuse, N.Y., native has established rapport with nearly every high school coach in the state, and with his background in the Chicago area, is especially familiar with the players, teams and coaches in that talent-rich area.

Collins began his relationship with Lou Henson as a player at New Mexico State. Over his three year career, Collins averaged 20.1 points per game and led the Aggies to the 1970 NCAA Final Four, where they took third place. He then went on to play for the Chicago Bulls of the NBA and Carolina Cougars of the ABA.

Following his professional basketball career, Collins returned to New Mexico State as a graduate assistant. After obtaining his master's degree, it was back to Chicago, where he went into private business before accepting a position as a probation officer in 1977. During that same period of time, he was a volunteer coach at St. Thomas School in Chicago and coordinated summer basketball leagues. Since his arrival at Illinois, Collins also has coached in the pro-college league of Chicago, where he was named Coach of the Year in 1981. His coaching responsibilities with Illinois, in addition to recruiting, lie largely with the development of the guards.

Collins and his wife, Hettie, have four children, Erica, 21, Kenny, 20, Semaj, 17 and Brandi, 8.

Mark Coomes

Mark Coomes has coached alongside Lou Henson on three different occasions. Following his graduation from Western Illinois in 1974, Coomes took a graduate assistant position with Henson at New Mexico State in 1974-75, earning his master's degree in Education Management and Development in 1975.

He followed Henson to Illinois in 1975 as a part-time assistant until his appointment as an assistant at Northern Illinois University. Coomes spent six seasons with the Huskies (1977-82) before being named head coach at Wabash Valley Community College in Indiana. In two years at WVCC, he compiled a 63-13 record, and was twice voted National Junior College Athletic Association (NJCAA) Region XXIV Coach of the Year.

The University of Southern Indiana called next, and Coomes spent one year there as head coach and athletic director. In that season, he led the Eagles to a conference championship and an NCAA Tournament berth. Coomes returned to Illinois in October 1985. His chief coaching responsibilities are in the areas of scouting, developing game plans, and monitoring the academic progress of the players. He and his wife, Linda, live in Champaign. They have two children, Anthony, 13, and Andrea, 11.

Scott Nagy

Scott Nagy returns for his second year with the Fighting Illini coaching staff as a graduate assistant. Nagy is a graduate of Delta State University in Cleveland, Miss., where he not only lettered four times, but started every game, in each of those seasons. Along the way, he was named conference Freshman of the Year, Delta State Senior Athlete of the Year and conference Athlete of the Year. He also helped lead the Statesmen to the 1987 NCAA (Division II) Final Four in Springfield, Mass. He dished out 549 assists in his college career, including 234 in one season.

Nagy spent several years during his youth in Abilene, Texas, but moved to Champaign (Ill.) and attended Centennial High School, where he played on the Chargers' 1984 IHSAA "Elite 8" basketball team. He earned his bachelor's degree in Business Management at DSU and is currently enrolled in the Sports Management program at the University of Illinois.

His duties with the basketball program include assisting with practice and academic monitoring of the Illinois student-athletes, and overseeing recruiting mailings and film exchanges. He is single and lives in Champaign.

1989-90 Prospectus

With the loss of the entire front line and point guard Larry Smith, Illinois' basketball team faces what some may term a rebuilding year. Gone are forwards Kenny Battle (16.6 ppg, 4.8 rpg), and Nick Anderson (18.0 ppg, 7.9 rpg), and center Lowell Hamilton (13.6 ppg, 5.7 rpg). That trio led Illinois in both points scored and rebounding. In all, they combined for 56 percent of Illinois' scoring and 49 percent of its rebounds last season. Battle and Anderson were both all-Americans and Hamilton earned honorable mention all-Big Ten Conference. Smith had shown flashes of brilliant play during Illinois' Final Four run.

Head Coach Lou Henson has a solid nucleus returning on which he can build. Led by seniors Stephen Bardo (8.1 ppg, 4.0 rpg), and Kendall Gill (15.4 ppg, 2.9 rpg), Henson again fields a team that could win 20 or more games and take its eighth consecutive trip to the NCAA tournament.

In the eighties, 20-win seasons have become commonplace in Champaign. In that decade, the Fighting Illini have racked up 233 wins, for an average of better than 23 wins per season—all accomplished against some of the toughest collegiate competition in America.

Illinois again faces a schedule most schools would not envy. In addition to the always-tough Big Ten schedule beginning in January, the team plays at Florida and Mississippi, and at St. Louis against Missouri.

Lou Henson's 15th Fighting Illini team takes on a slightly bigger look than last year's, but look for it to be nearly as quick. Henson has brought in seven new faces, at least three of whom figure to contribute immediately.

Perhaps the biggest loss is the scoring and rebounding strength of Anderson, who chose to forego his final year of eligibility and enter the NBA draft. His loss and the loss of Battle and Hamilton is eased a bit by the addition of three new post players, two of whom have earned all-American status. Those three join 6-foot-7-inch senior Ervin Small (2.1 ppg, 2.1 rpg), and 6-foot-8-inch junior Marcus Liberty (8.4 ppg, 3.0 rpg) in providing Illinois depth at a position in which it was lacking last season. Liberty, USA Today's 1987 high school Player of the Year, could step forward and become one of the best small forwards in the country. He is an excellent ball handler and can play shooting guard; he made great strides defensively last season.

Rodney Jones, a 6-foot-7-inch post-man who began working out with the team last January after transferring from New Mexico Junior College, is a likely candidate for one of the front line positions. Jones, who averaged 24.5 points and 14.4 rebounds per game in his final season at NMJC, shot 60 percent from the field and led the Western Junior College Athletic Conference with 93 blocked shots. He has the added advantage of having been in the system more than half of last season. Another junior college transfer, Andy Kpedi (pronounced Peddy), a native of Warri, Nigeria, bolsters the Illinois front line. Kpedi, who attended Kankakee Community College, earned NJCAA second team all-America honors by averaging 16 points and nine rebounds per game last season.

Deon Thomas is the third piece in the front line puzzle for the Fighting Illini this year. Thomas, 1989 Mr. Basketball in the state of Illinois, is the third of the last four recipients of that award to play for Henson. The 6-foot-8-inch all-American comes to Illinois from the same high school that produced Anderson. At Chicago Simeon, Thomas averaged 24 points, 12 rebounds and six blocked shots per game, numbers good enough to earn him second team mention on Basketball Times' high school All-American squad.

Freshman Tom Michael (6-foot-8-inches) and 6-foot-6-inch sophomore Andy Kaufmann (4.3 ppg, 1.7 rpg) also provide depth in both the front and backcourts, respectively. Kaufmann, who played in 12 games last season prior to being sidelined for medical reasons, averaged nearly 30 points per game in high school and could see considerable action this season.

The backcourt for Illinois in 1989-90 could be among the best in the country despite the loss of Larry Smith until the 1990-91 season due to academic reasons. Led by two seniors, this area is a key to the team's success this season. With a duo of Kendall Gill, and Stephen Bardo, Illinois possesses not only good quickness, but also excellent size. Bardo, who was named as the Big Ten's 1989 Defensive Player of the Year, is 6-foot-6-inches and has proven he can defend shooting guards and post-men effectively. Gill is a preseason all-American at shooting guard. He shot 54 percent from the field 46 percent from three-point range last season. Senior P.J. Bowman (3.0 ppg, 1.0 rpg) saw action in 29 games last season and provides the team with another legitimate three-point threat. Bowman is joined by freshmen Brooks Taylor and Tim Geers of Chicago's De La Salle High School and Bloomington High's Ken Gibson, all of whom received all-state honors.

The 1989-90 version of the Fighting Illini basketball team appears to be a promising blend of young players and experienced veterans. This is a bigger team that looks to push the ball up the floor as much as ever. It could be the ninth consecutive Illinois team to increase its scoring average over the previous season. Although the Fighting Illini are hard pressed to match the success of last year's squad, it shapes up to be another exciting and successful season of Illinois basketball.

Illinois vs. Indiana Last Season

January 28, 1989 at Champaign

Illinois returned home after its first loss of the season to face Indiana, which had won 13 games in a row and led the Big Ten with a 6-0 mark. It looked at half time as though the Hoosiers would stay on their winning streak, as they quieted the largest Assembly Hall crowd of the year with a 35-25 lead. The Hoosiers shot 56 percent in the first half, while the Illini could only manage 37 percent. Kenny Battle woke up the team and the fans at the start of the second half when the Fighting Illini outscored Indiana 28-13 in the first 10-19 behind 13 Battle points. Nick Anderson picked it up from there, scoring 10 of Illinois' 17 points in the final six minutes, as the Orange and Blue came away with a 75-65 victory.

March 4, 1989 at Bloomington

Illinois travelled to Bloomington, Ind., clinging to a slim hope of tying for the Big Ten title. Both teams had three games remaining, and Indiana led the Illini by three games. What resulted was one of the most exciting games of the year, with Illinois pulling out a 70-67 victory on Nick Anderson's 35-foot three-pointer at the buzzer after the Hoosiers' Jay Edwards had tied the game with an equally incredible jumper from deep in the corner with .02 on the clock. Both teams struggled in the first half, with Indiana shooting 40 percent and Illinois 33 percent. The Hoosiers were strong at the end of the half, taking a 27-25 lead, and continued to play well at the start of the second half, taking a 47-34 lead on Todd Jadlow's layn with 11:31 remaining. Illinois fought back with an 18-7 run to cut the lead to 54-52 on a Nick Anderson slam with 5:48 remaining. Indiana kept the lead until a Steve Bardo three-pointer with 1:38 left gave the Fighting Illini a 67-65 lead. The score stayed that way until Edwards tied it with his late-game heroics. After Bardo called timeout for Illinois, he threw a bullet pass to Anderson (just past half court), who turned and drilled the shot for the winner.

March 8 at Champaign

Lowell Hamilton, Kenny Battle and Nick Anderson ended their playing days at the Assembly Hall in line fashion, as they combined for 74 points and were backed by three other players in double figures. Iowa jumped out to an early 20-10 lead, but was outscored 41-15 in the final 13:12 of the first half. The game was tied at 33 when the Fighting Illini welcomed Kendall Gill to the lineup. Gill, who missed 12 games with a broken foot, scored six consecutive points to ignite a 16-0 run that blew the game wide open at the end of the first half. Gill made six of his last 10 shots and finished with 15 points. The balanced Fighting Illini attack offset a 37-point performance by Hawkeye senior Roy Marble. The victory was Illinois' 22nd in a row at home, and capped off a 17-0 season at the Assembly Hall. It was also the team's eighth win in its previous nine games.

Illinois finished the regular season strongly as they defeated Michigan at Crisler Arena. The victory gave Illinois a school record 27 wins and gave the team an 8-1 finish in the second half of the Big Ten season for the second consecutive year. Michigan, the nation's leading team in field goal percentage, struggled early but managed to cut a 14-point lead to 6 at the half. The Wolverine shooting percentage declined as they shot 39 percent compared to 77 percent for Illinois. Illinois' switching man-to-man defense worked well as Rumeal Robinson (9-17) was the only Wolverine starter to make at least half his shots. Kenny Battle led the Illini in scoring with 22 points. Kendall Gill again gave the Illini a spark off the bench with 19 points on 7-11 shooting from the field. The victory gave Illinois a final regular-season record of 27-4, 14-4 in the Big Ten.

Illinois vs. Minnesota Last Season

January 26, 1989 at Minneapolis

Life without Kendall Gill and having the nation's top ranking was not good for Illinois as they fell to a stubborn Minnesota squad 69-62 in treacherous William's Arena. The Gophers took advantage of Gill's absence with a zone defense and the Illini responded with 40.7 percent shooting from the field. Willie Burton led Minnesota with 20 points and 13 rebounds and had solid backing from Melvin Newbern who added 16 points and six steals. One bright spot for Illinois was the play of P.J. Bowman, who scored nine points on three of five shooting from three point range. The loss dropped Illinois to 17-1 on the year and 4-1 in the Big Ten.

Illinois avenged its first loss of the season with a 63-58 win over Minnesota at the Assembly Hall. The Illini jumped out to a 23-10 lead. The Gophers managed to tie the game twice but never led while the Illini could never build a lead of more than 10 points in the second half. Illinois took advantage of Richard Colley's absence by grabbing 13 offensive rebounds. Lowell Hamilton grabbed 10 rebounds, including seven offensive boards. Nick Anderson followed up on his 35-point performance at Ohio State with 19 points on 9-15 shooting from the field. Illinois improved their record to 24-4 and 11-4 in the Big Ten.

Illinois vs. Northwestern Last Season

January 19, 1989 at Evanston

Illinois used a 42-22 rebounding advantage to overcome a slow start and hold off Northwestern in their first Big Ten road game. The Wildcats pumped out to a 7-0 lead and Illinois did not make a field goal until the 14:22 mark of the first half. Northwestern's Walker Lambiotte scored on a lay in with 12:48 left that gave the Wildcats a 17-10 lead. The Illini then went on a 15-1 run to lead 25-21 with 7:01 left in the half behind seven points by Kendall Gill. The game remained close after that and when Brian Schwabe hit a 15-footer with 3:04 left to play, the Wildcats only trailed by one. The Illini hung tough, though, and scored the next eight points to ensure the victory. Kenny Battle led Illinois with 23 points and eight rebounds, including four offensive boards.

The victory gave the Illini their twentieth victory against three losses and marked the earliest point in a season that Illinois had ever won twenty games. The big difference in the game was rebounding, as it was in Evanston in the two teams' first meeting. Illinois outrebounded the Wildcats 45-21, including a 17-3 edge on the offensive boards. Lowell Hamilton led the way for Illinois with 11 rebounds. Walker Lambiotte led the Wildcats with 24 points and five rebounds.

February 9, 1989 at Champaign

The Illini, led by Stephen Bardo, edged the Buckeyes in a tight defensive battle. The Illini front line produced most of the scoring, as Nick Anderson tallied 22, Kenny Battle 15, and Lowell Hamilton 14. After Illinois opened up an eight point lead four minutes into the second half, the Buckeyes went on a 21-6 run to take a 56-49 lead with 9:23 left. But the Buckeyes could score only four more points the rest of the game to Illinois' 13, and fell just short, 62-60. Perry Carter led the Ohio State attack with 15 points and eight rebounds. The Fighting Illini broke a two game losing streak and improved their record to 19-3 and 6-3 in the Big Ten.

Illinois vs. Purdue Last Season

February 2, 1989 at West Lafayette

The Purdue Boilermakers lit up the Fighting Illini with 71 percent shooting in the first half to offset 11 turnovers and only trail by two points at the half. The Boilers' Tony Jones and Melvin McCants would not let the Boilermakers lose, as they both turned in excellent shooting performances. Jones did it from the outside, on 9 of 12 shooting including 2 of 2 from three point range to score 22 points. McCants did it from the foul line, as he connected on 10 of 11 free throws, including eight of nine in the second half and had 126 points. The win for Purdue was its fifth in a row over Illinois and broke a three game home losing streak.

February 20, 1989 at Champaign

The Fighting Illini looked more mad than tired in their third game in five days as they used a 21-0 first half run to bury Purdue 102-75. Marcus Liberty netted a team-high 21 points and grabbed a team high seven rebounds. Nick Anderson and Kenny Battle also had solid performances with 21 and 20 points respectively. It marked the first of two times last season that the Fighting Illini had three players score 20 or more points. Illinois played torrid defense in the first half, and especially during the 21-0 run when Purdue was forced to turn the ball over six times and got off only five shots. The 102-point outburst marked the seventh time last season that Illinois scored in triple figures. The win was Illinois' 19th in a row at home and 15th of the season. The win also broke Illinois' 5-game losing streak to Purdue.

Illinois vs. Wisconsin Last Season

January 12, 1989 at Champaign

Kendall Gill led the Fighting Illini to their second conference win of the season, as they posted a 103-80 win over the Wisconsin Badgers. Gill was a perfect 7 of 7 from the field (including four three pointers) and 1 of 1 from the free throw line to become the first Illinois player to go a whole game without missing a shot since Derek Harper did it in 1983. He also dished out four assists and had five steals. Wisconsin led, 23-20 just after the midway point of the first half, when the Fighting Illini went on a 15-2 run over the next six minutes. Five Illinois players scored in double figures, and the team grabbed 14 offensive rebounds, while Wisconsin only had 15 defensive rebounds.

February 18, 1989 at Madison

Wisconsin dealt a blow to Illinois' hope for a Big Ten championship with a 72-52 win in Madison. Trent Jackson hit up the Fighting Illini for 27 points on 10-of-15 shooting from the field, including five three pointers. The Badgers shot 57 percent for the game while holding Illinois to 39 percent. After Lowell Hamilton cut the lead to 12-9 with 13:47 left in the first half, Wisconsin went on a 14-4 run, and the game was mostly the Badgers'. The victory was Wisconsin's first in 17 games against the Fighting Illini. The visitors dropped to two and one-half games behind first-place Indiana at 8-4.

Illinois' Road to the Final Four...

Coach Lou Henson, family, friends, and media learn, along with Director of Athletics John Mackovic that Illinois is the No. 1 seed in the NCAA Midwest Regional.

This was Illinois' seventh consecutive NCAA Tournament appearance, and sixth straight as one of the top sixteen seeds. The Illini seven year streak in the NCAA Tournament is the longest of any Big Ten team.

First stop on the Battle to Seattle: The Indiana Hoosier Dome in Indianapolis. Although the Fighting Illini football team played here in 1984, this is the first dome in which an Illinois basketball team has played. The Fighting Illini seemed to be at home in the dome as they defeated McNeese State and Ball State, on their way to the Metrodome and eventually the Kingdome.

Lowell Hamilton's best performance of the tournament was a nineteen-point, five-rebound effort against Ball State. Illinois' second-round 72-60 win over the Cardinals sent the team to Minneapolis for regional competition the following weekend.

...A Look Back

Next step on the tournament trail was Minneapolis, where the Fighting Illini disposed of some more Cardinals, this time, the Louisville variety. Here point guard Stephen Bardo drives left of the lane, as Marcus Liberty positions himself for the entry pass. Liberty played one of his finest games of the season, contributing 14 points and eight rebounds in an expanded role (due to Lowell Hamilton's early-game injury).

Nick Anderson turned in probably his most impressive performance of his career at Illinois in the 89-86 regional final victory over Syracuse. Anderson's 24 points and 16 rebounds helped the Fighting Illini to their first trip to the Final Four since 1952. Afterward, Anderson, decorated with a net from the Metrodome, reflected on Illinois' stunning performances in the Battle to Seattle.

An emotional Fighting Illini basketball team celebrates its hard fought win over Syracuse and their berth in the NCAA Final Four.

This was not just another Big Ten game. Here, Illinois and Michigan tipped off their clash at the 51st NCAA Final Four in Seattle. It was the third time in the last 14 years that two Big Ten teams had met in the Final Four.

Kendall Gill drives for a reverse layup against Michigan in the national semifinal game at Seattle. Illinois defeated the Wolverines 89-73 and 96-84 during the regular season, but were edged out, 83-81, in their bid to compete for the national championship. Gill is projected as an all-American candidate for the 1989-90 season.

Kenny Battle's infectious smile seems to punctuate the 1988-89 Illinois basketball season, one that Fighting Illini faithful won't forget. Battle is a rookie with the NBA Phoenix Suns.

Chief Illiniwek

One of the most colorful and dramatic traditions associated with college athletics is the dance of the University of Illinois' Chief Illiniwek. Since 1926, the Chief has been a fixture at football and basketball games. Whether leading the band onto the field at Memorial Stadium or exploding from the tunnel of Assembly Hall, the Chief is sure to put on a performance not soon forgotten.

Chief Illiniwek was created when assistant Band Director Ray Dvorak conceived the idea of performing an Indian war dance at halftime of the Pennsylvania/Illinois game in Philadelphia. Lester Leutwiler, a student interested in Indian lore, was chosen to perform the first dance. Wearing a homemade Indian costume, Leutwiler's performance was so well received that he was asked to continue his dance throughout the 1926 season. He remained Chief for the following two seasons, and in 1929 the late Webber Borchers became the second chief.

Borchers believes the name Chief Illiniwek (Ill-LYE-nye-wek) was suggested by Illinois football coach Robert Zuppke. It was Borchers who first appeared as Chief in an authentic Indian costume. He initiated a campaign to raise money to replace his homemade costume with an authentic one, but due to the Depression, he received just $15.

A Champaign merchant stepped in to fund the rest and Borchers was off to South Dakota and the Pine Ridge Indian Reservation. He recalled, "In the summer of 1930 I went, at my own expense, to the Pine Ridge Reservation in South Dakota. I hitchhiked out, called on an Indian agent and explained my mission. He and an Indian trader called in an older Sioux Indian woman. She and two younger women made the suit." Borchers' initial plans were to bring the suit back in time for the first game, but it would not be ready in time. The seventh game of the season, Army vs. Illinois in New York's Yankee Stadium, Borchers made the first appearance as Chief Illiniwek in authentic costume. The date was Nov. 8, 1930.

Since that date, five different authentic costumes have been used by Chief Illiniwek; the most recent being purchased in 1983 from 93-year old Indian Chief Frank Fools Crow. The elaborately beaded costume includes moccasins, blanket, peace pipe, pouch, breastplate and a war bonnet with 90 eagle feathers. Included on the bonnet are the names of every chief of the past (including Princess Illiniwek Idelle Stich, who assumed the position in 1943, during World War II). The dance itself is an actual series of Indian steps with each person adding their own individual touch. The current chief is Tom Livingston, a senior from LaGrange, Ill.

Interviews

The visiting coach is available for interviews following each game, as is Illinois Coach Lou Henson. Visiting players are available subject to their team's policy, and selected Illinois players are brought into the interview room (also used by the coaches), which is located just west of the north tunnel of the Assembly Hall. Player interview requests should be given to the sports information staff of the appropriate team prior to the conclusion of the game.

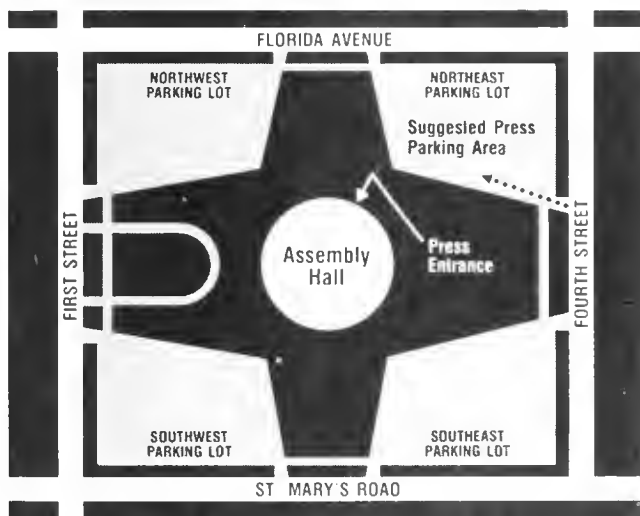

On non-game days, Illinois players and coaches are available for short in-person interviews prior to their practice sessions. (However, players are not available for interviews either the day before or the day of a game or while on the road [except post-game]). Telephone interviews are coordinated with coaches' and players' schedules. Media requests for interviews and/or to attend practices must be made through the sports information office.

Those interested in (audio) taping grouped interviews after games or at the press luncheons should connect their recorders to the distribution amplifier provided by the Sports Information Office. Output from the device is microphone level, terminated in 1/8" two-conductor plugs and jacks, or three-pin standard microphone male connectors.

Media services

Media personnel covering Illinois basketball at the Assembly Hall are furnished with game programs, press guides and pregame information sheets. Complete play-by-plays, half time and final statistics are distributed to each assigned location in the press box. In addition, materials are available in the Media Lounge, Room 123 of the Assembly Hall, before, after and during half time of each game. The room accommodates coats and equipment, and is locked while the game is in progress. Please contact a member of the UI Sports Information staff, if access to Room 123 is needed during the game. Food and drinks for working media are available at the refreshment stand directly behind the center of the pressbox. Coupons are available by request from Sports Information Office personnel, located in the center of the back row of the press area.
